With a view to re-examining human needs in Bulloch county, an extensive study of community resources will be launched here by the Bulloch County Chapter of the American Red Cross. The local chapter is one of the few in the U. S. selected to make this study.

The study, announced this week after formal approval of the chapter board, eventually will be used to coordinate Red Cross community planning for the best possible use of all resources available throughout Statesboro and Bulloch county.

Commenting on the move, Chapter Chairman E. L. Barnes said: "During World War II the American Red Cross alleviated great suffering and brought comfort and aid to millions of servicemen and their relatives. Now that the war is over, this service will be continued for veterans, men in the armed forces and their families, but the real challenge will lie in helping to achieve the ideal of the better kind of home life for which so many of our young men died."

"The Red Cross, with its multitude of volunteer workers who believe in neighbors helping neighbors, is especially equipped to meet this challenge. To such an end, a survey committee will study all existing community needs in which the Red Cross might serve."

"An analysis of the completed survey and subsequent action by the chapter will assure a strong long-range program of service by and for the people of Bulloch County."

Mr. Barnes explained the survey would be made with the assistance of Gus A. Burelson, a community planning specialist from the Red Cross Southeastern Area Office in Atlanta.

Names of local survey committee members will be announced at an early date.

Edgar Hart, chief of police of Statesboro, announced that Jerry Potter had been added to the city police force.

Policeman Potter comes to Statesboro from Savannah where he served on the city police force there for four years. A veteran of World War II, he served with the field artillery. He was a Bulloch county woman, the former Grace Key, daughter of Mr. W. J. Key.

Stepping high wide and handsome the Statesboro Blue Devil 50-piece band stole the show from the High School Blue Devil Football Team when the SHS eleven opened the 1946 football season Friday night on the local gridiron.

Led by Drum Major Jackie Waters the band took the field between the halves at the football game and paraded the length of the field and doubled back to mid-field where intricate formations were made and the school alma mater was played with the crowds singing the chorus.

Mr. George Shearouse, director, states that this year a number of new instruments have been added including two sousaphones, two baritone, four new field drums, bass clarinets, alto clarinets and an oboe.

According to Mr. Shearouse the band is equipped with the finest instruments in the world. Many new instruments were purchased by the individual band members and a number were purchased and are owned by the band.

A Verse For This Week

Every man has at times in his mind the ideal of what he should be, but is not. This ideal may be high and complete, or it may be quite low and insufficient; yet in all men that really seek to improve, it is better than the actual character. . . . Man never fails so low that he can see nothing higher than himself.

—Theodore Parker.

Now Is the Time

Since the first of October the City of Statesboro has been without a city engineer.

Pretty soon there is coming up an election for a Mayor and two Councilmen.

And now is a good time to consider the progress of the Statesboro Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The City Manager Plan of government is known as the "American Plan" of government. It is accepted by political scientists and government experts.

It operates exactly like a well organized business. It is the application to municipal government the method of organization found best in operating a business.

Experience shows that graft and corruption are at a minimum, or practically non-existent in communities operating under the City Manager Plan.

City government costs only as much as it must cost and not as much as a political clique want it to cost. The citizens who live in communities with the City Manager Plan can be sure of having his government do all the things for him that need to be done, and that it will do them well. The citizen in such communities is always sure of getting a fair hearing for any proposal to change what the government is doing.

In short, home town government, not only belongs to the people, but it is run entirely in their interest.

Under such a plan responsibility is not divided between the council and an executive who can stand on his dignity and say to the council: "I was elected by the people; don't you tell me what to do!"

If a city manager does a good job the city progresses and he keeps his job. If the city manager becomes incompetent he gets his walking papers.

Sooner or later Statesboro is going to employ a new city engineer. Before that time we could promote the change to the City Manager Plan, hire a competent manager and put Statesboro on a business-like basis.

We think the Jaycees have some of the things for him that need to be done, and that it will do them well. The citizen in such communities is always sure of getting a fair hearing for any proposal to change what the government is doing.

VETERANS CORNER

Insurance, loans, compensation and other veterans benefits are discussed in replies to inquiries by veterans residing in the southeast. Here are a few of the questions veterans are asking and the replies to their letters as prepared by the Veterans Administration.

For 15 months I have been receiving compensation for injuries suffered in the Army. Last month I failed to get a check. Where Office stands shirking duty? A. Should I write? Veterans, Swainsboro, Ga.

A. Your nearest Regional VA Office: Atlanta, Ga. Attention: Finance Officer.

Q. How much money can a veteran borrow from the Government to buy a farm? What is the customary charge for appraising a farm? Veteran, Miller, Ga.

A. The Government will not lend any money under the GI Bill. The money must be borrowed from a bank or other financial institution. The Government will guarantee 50 per cent of the loan but will never guarantee more than $4,000. Appraisal charges are strictly local business matters and will vary according to sections in which appraisals are made.

Q. Must a veteran have a permanent job before he can borrow money? Where and how should he go about borrowing money to start a business? Veteran, Metter, Ga.

A. No, but he must show sufficient evidence that he can make E. Main St., Statesboro, Ga.

Under the amended Act of 1946 a veteran can purchase NSLI in multiples of $500 not below $1,000 and not more than $10,000 on the following plans: 20-year endowment at age 60; and endowment at age 65.

Veterans wishing further information about veterans' benefits may have their questions personally answered by Jack I. Biles, VA Contact Representative at 21-12 E. Main St., Statesboro, Ga.

G. I. INSURANCE

"National Service Life Insurance is the best buy of all insurance policies."

That is the studied verdict of life underwriters—men who make a business of selling insurance. And that's why private life inurance firms are joining with the VA in urging veterans to take advantage of the lowest cost, highest value policy ever offered.

Designed to provide maximum protection at minimum cost, NSLI can offer more than any other policy for one reason: The Government itself pays all overhead and administrative costs.

Recent Congressional legislation liberalized NSLI so that now payment may be made in a lump sum, or monthly, or a combination of both; a veteran can name any beneficiary he wishes, including his own estate, and there are a number of permanent policies available to meet the need of any veteran.

All NSLI policies have a provision providing for waiver of premiums in the event of disability lasting longer than six months. For a small additional disability protection can be had which pays a veteran an income of $50 a month on a $10,000 policy for the duration of a disability lasting longer than six months.

Normally a physical examination is required to reinstate a policy, but right at the moment, to give veterans one final chance to take advantage of the program, even that has been waived.

Any veteran who has held a policy can reinstate it by paying two monthly premiums and signing a statement that his health is the same as it was at the time the policy lapsed. That liberalized provision holds good until February 1, 1947.

Before you buy a Tractor... MAKE THIS SIMPLE TEST:

Before you buy a tractor, take a pencil and "design" your own on paper. Jot down the type and size you need, the equipment required. List everything that contributes to economy, dependability, long life, and ease of handling. Then, look over the field—get the facts—and select the tractor that comes closest to matching those specifications. It's almost certain your choice will be a John Deere with its famous, exclusive two-cylinder engine.

In the first place, John Deere two-cylinder engine design is unmatched in simplicity. It does away with hundreds of parts necessary in other tractors.

Greater dependability and longer life are other direct advantages of this simplicity. There's less chance for trouble and field delays. Parts are larger, heavier, stronger, for longer wear.

Operation costs are less, too, because John Deere two-cylinder engine design is especially adapted to burning the low-cost, money-saving fuels.

There's a variety of up-to-the-minute models and power sizes from which to choose. Let us tell you more about these famous two-cylinder tractors.

officials for cottonseed products in which 3 cents per pound for lint, and cottonseed oil from 12 5-8 cents to 14 3-8 cents per pound. The Farm Bureau leaders from cotton growing states requested an increase of 15 cents per pound for oil.

On his recent trip to Washington in connection with the price of cottonseed and cottonseed products, Mr. Wingate was accompanied by Congressman Paul Brown of the Tenth District, who did a swell job and the farmers of Georgia are deeply indebted to him for breaking many engagements in the state to make this special trip for the benefit of cotton growers.

For the past several months, the Farm Bureau leader has been in constant touch with OPA and Department of Agriculture officials in Washington in an attempt to secure a boost in the price of oil and lint which has not been in line with the price paid by farmers for other by-products of this commodity, meal and hulls.

"This has been a long, hard struggle. The increase granted by officials for cottonseed products in which 3 cents per pound for lint, and cottonseed oil from 12 5-8 cents to 14 3-8 cents per pound. The Farm Bureau leaders from cotton growing states requested an increase of 15 cents per pound for oil.

A mechanical cotton picker was demonstrated on H. C. Alexander farm, about five miles north of Midville Tuesday, September 10, at 10 a.m.

Several Bulloch county farmers visited this farm some six weeks ago to see several new machines that Mr. Alexander is using, including the cotton picker and three flume cultivators. Others had said they wanted to see the picker work.

One economical practice used on this farm that local cotton growers might use in many fields is the cross cultivating to chop the cotton. This practice saved lots of hand labor in chopping the 1946 crop for Mr. Alexander. He also used a defoliation material to help control the boll weevil.
